

1990 Lisbon, Portugal

“Socialist Policies for Equality and Fair Chances in Education”

CONCLUSIONS

The school must aim at development of social and personal skills – acquisition of different types of knowledge and skills.

The aims of socialist educational policy must include international cooperation and understanding.

The school must promote the study of multiculturalism.

A partnership network between different social actors based on the principles of solidarity and reciprocity is important.

Equality of opportunities implies joined efforts of families and schools.

The inequalities in education are a reflection of economic inequalities. Economic development and a fairer distribution of wealth is crucial.

More support to children with social problems.

The quality of education should be improved.